MILITIA IN BATTLE ARRAY.

A BLOODLESS FIGHT IN PROSPECT PARK. THE SECOND DIVISION PITTED AGAINST ITSELF-

THE CROWD IN THE WAY OF THE FIRING.

THE SKOOND DIVISION PITTED AGAINST ITSELF—
THE CROWD IN THE WAY OF THE FIRING.
The field drill of the Second Division of the National Guard at Prospect Park, Brooklyn, yesterday, was successful in its main object, which was to exercise the troops in mancurres such as they would be called upon to execute under fire in a field presenting such topegraphical features as that selected for the purpose. As an exhibition it proved attractive to the throng of between 30,000 and 40,000 people by which it was witnessed, and, to some extent, interfered with. The ground on which it took place has historical associations of interest. I formed the centre of the American line in the Battle of Long Island, fought August 27, 1776. It was there that four hundred men of the Maryland and Delaware battallons, under General Sullivan, sturdily withstood the advancing British host from sunrise until 12 o'clock, when, having been flanked, they were compelled to retire.

The regulations of the Park Commissioners, under which the troops were permitted to use the park on this occasion, confined their operations to the space between the East and West Drives, so that the place where the first lines of battle were formed was like a narrow pass which in actual conflict could have been defended by a few men against a largely superior force. The 3d and 4th brigades, constituting the Second Division, were pitted against each other, each sided by a section of the 3d Battery. Major-General Edward L. Molineux, who, since taking command of the division, has labored successfuly in improving its drill and discipline, had obtained permission to fight a sham battle in the park and divided his forces into two small armies, each about 1,200 strong. His instructions to Erigadier-General C. T. Christensen, commanding the 3d Brigade, were to act as the rear gaard of an army in retreat and when attacked to sond him reinforcement. Brigadier-General W. H. Brownell, commanding the 4th Brigade, was to dispose his command as the advance guard of an army in bursuit least three ocean steamers which sailed from New-York last menth, and should have rached their parts of destination some time arg, will never relate their experiences in the terrific hurriennes of January 27 and 29, which have been vividiy described by those who crossed the ocean on the Servia, Ataska, and other stannen vessels of the regular lines. These three steamers belong to the regular lines. The steam of the property of the regular lines and from perts where freight can be obtained and have no regular haven; they are the Chandon, which sailed for Leith and Bristol on January 22, and the Preston and Fernwood, which sailed for Avonmonth, or firstol, two days prior to the Clandon. None of these vessels calcined saiged for Avonmonth, or firstol, two days prior to the Clandon. None of these vessels calcined saiged for Avonmonth, or firstol, two days prior to the Clandon. The Fernwood was an iron, water-ballast vessel, divided into five (presumably) water-tight compariments with iron bulkheads. In addition to steam power, she was rigged with three masts for fore-and-aft sails as an auxiliary in case of derangoment to her machinery. She was built at New-castle, England, in 1877, and was owned by J. D. Milburn, of London. She was 280 feet in longth, of 34 teet beam 242 feet in depth of hold, and of 1,852 tons gress measurement. She was commanded by Captan Roberts, and had a crew of thirty-one others. Her cargo consisted of 22,400 bushels of wheat, 5,703 sacks of flour, 15 barrels of sperm oil, 350 barrels and 25 tierces of pork, 20 barrels of beef, 154 packages of woodware, 233,217 pounds of bacon. 200 barrels of secarg the cargo.

The Prosten was also a water-ballast iron vessel,

The Prosten was also a water-ballast irou vessel, with six bulkheads, or seven transverse compartments. She was commanded by Captain Rooke and had a crew of thirty-three. She was built at West Hartlepool in 1882, and was owned by R. Ropner & Co., of that port. Her rig was half-brigantine, and her dimensions were as follows: 300 feet in length, 40 feet beam, 24½ feet depth of hold, and 2,539 tous, measurement. She had a cargo of 95,514 bushels of wheat, 1,500 sacks of flour and 420,429 pounds of oil-cake. She was valued at about $250,000.

The Clandon was commanded by Captain Pittick and had a crew of about thirty others. Its vessel was likewise of the water ballast type, built of iron, with five transverse bulkheads. She was constructed at Low Walker, Eugland, in 1878, and was ewned by J. D. Milburn, of London. Her dimensions were 285 feet in length, 35 feet beam, 24 1-3 depth of hold, 1,971 tons measurement, and she was half brigantine rigged. She had a large assorted cargo, consisting of 23,333 bushels of wheat, 1,000 barrels of sugar, 790 cases of conned goods, 2,400 staves, 200 barrels of Inbricating oil, 258 packages of woodware. 40 packages of manufactured wood, 1 package of hardware, 4 packages of furniture, 16 wheels, 8 cases of agricultural implements, 227,887 pounds of lard, I case of drugs, 131,168 pounds of tailow, 25,541 bushels of corn, 10,443 sacks of flour, 100 barrels of pork, 45 bags of clover seed. The vessel, valued at about $200,000, and cargo were partly secured.

There were no pall-bearers. Ex-Judge Hilton, ex-Judge Herace Russell, Mr. and Mrs. John M. Hughes and Mrs. A. T. Stewart were among the chief mourners and occupied seats near the coffin. The burnal took place at Marble Cemetery, in Second-st, near Second-ave.

LAST TRIBUTES TO DR. CAHILL. CEREMONIES AT THE CATHEDRAL.

THE REMAINS TAKEN ON BOARD THE WYOMING

ON THEIR WAY TO IRELAND.

At sunrise yesterday the coffin containing the bones of the Rev. Dr. Daniel W. Cahli-was removed from the vestibule of St. Patrick's Cashedral, where it had remained since its arrival at minight, and was placed upon a catafalque in the middle alsle of the Cathedral, immediately before the high altar. The solemn requiem mass, the last religious service that will be said over the remains in this country, was celebrated at 10 o'clock. Long before that hour the avenue in front of the Cathedral was thronged with people eager to witness the ceremeny, but admission was by ticket only, and those who had no tickets were turned away. During the service the 69th Regiment, which was to escort the body to the steamer Wyoming, formed in Fifth-ave. Within the church the speciale was impressive. The coffin and catafalque were covered with a large pall of black velvet. Three large tapers burned en either side, and beside each taper stood a Panal Zonave, in the black and yellow uniform of the corns. Directly behind the coffin three more soldiers of the same company held flags draped in mourning—the Irish and the American flags and the colors of the Papal Zonaves. The public and the organ pealed forth its most selemn notes. The great bullding was full before the hour set for the service. Among those present were Mayor Grace, the mesident of the New-York centurities; John W. Goff, John E. Davelin, Thomas S. Brennas, Professor J. B. Brophy. J. P. Ryan, Mayor Fitzgerald of Troy, Judge McAdam, Judge Brady, Judge Daly, ex-Civil Justice Quinn, Eugene Kelly, Morgan J. O'Brien and ex-Alderman W. L. Cole. At 10 c'lock the deer of the vestry opened and the pall-bearers from Boston and from New-York pall-learers were Dr. C. J. McGuire, J. J. O'Donohue, J. S. Coleman, John O'Byrne, Patrick Ford, Lawrence J. Callahau, W. R. Roberts, John Hayes, Dr. Philip E. Donhu, E. D. Farrell, P. J. Wesha, John D. Grimmins, James P. Farrell, P. J. O'Donohue, J. S. WOOD CUT ON JUDGE BARNARD'S GROUNDS.

Detective Brady and Officer Bolster, of the Thirty-fourth Precinct, arrested two men who were cutting down trees yesterday in Bussing's Grove, a handsome bit of property adjoining John Haskins's house, in Jerome-ave. Mr. Haskins has been supposed by the neighbors to own the place, but it belongs to Judge J. J. Barnard. The prisoners' names are Thomas O'Reilly and John Ciair, and they were arraigned in the Harlem Court. Ex-senator Wagstaff, who caused their arrest, told Justice White that they had destroyed timber worth $150, and that Judge Barnard prized the trees very highly. Philip Berrian accompanied the prisoners to court and produced two letters from Judge Barnard, one telling him to clear the place of unoerbrush and the other telling him to make the grove appear "seemly" even if it was necessary to cut down trees for that purpose. Justice White disaussed the complaint, but told Mr. Berrian, who said the prisoners were in his employ, to reasove no more Judge Barnard.

RAUSCHER AND KOELPIN ARRAIGNED.

William Rauscher, the second mate, and Ferdinand Koeplin, the boatswain of the American ship J. F. Chapman, who are charged with killing Peter Jaussen, a sailor on the vessel, were arraigned vesterday before Commissioner Shields. An affidavit by Assistant District-Attorney Fosier was presented by Assistant District-Attorney Tift, and the men were sent to the Ladlow Street Jail to be held for examination to-morrow. Mate Ranscher was accompanied by his step-mother, who had furnished the means for his defence in England, and had a letter to a New-York lawyer. Rauscher is a small, slight, dark complexioned man, who looks as if he might be excitable, but does not appear physically strong. The boatswain is tail and stout, with a shaggy beard. Neither of the men would say anything of the charges against them. The death of Janssen, it is charged, was caused by his being lashed to the topsail sheets with only his toes touching the deck on October 7. A long course of till-treatment had preceded the final act of torture. RAUSCHER AND KOELPIN ARRAIGNED.

ROUGH VOYAGE FROM SANTO DOMINGO.

The schooner Jordan L. Mott, which arrived yesterday, had a rough voyage from Santo Domingo.

"We sailed from Santo Domingo en January 31." said Captain Tobin, "and on the following day met a stiff gate with a heavy running sea. Several of our sails were torn or blown away, and when we hove-to to make repairs the seas made a clean breach over us. One sea swept off the galley-house, carrying with it the stove and cooking attensits, straining our boats and washing away our watercasks and everything clee movable on deck. Again on the 7th a heavy squall broke over us, when our foresail was torn ail along the leach. On the 10th we had a succession of wind and rain squalis, and on the following day we had a heavy snow storm. Again we lost some of our sails, our how-sprit was loosened and our fore-rigging was started. Heavy squalls were again encountered on the 18th, and three days later we came near going ashore on Long Island. The sails and rigging were so badiy tieed up that we had great difficulty in preventing the vessel from going ashore. Captain desson and the crew of the life-saving station at Potank came to our assistance and we worked off shore." ROUGH VOYAGE FROM SANTO DOMINGO.

CAPTAIN HUSSEY SAVES ANOTHER BOY.
